

Jupiter – Neptune Aspects: Conjunct, Sextile, Trine, Square, and Opposition

Jupiter conjunct
Neptune

♃ Jupiter conjunct Neptune

With Jupiter forming a conjunction to Neptune in the birth chart, you have a solid spiritual or idealistic side to your nature and, especially, your belief system or worldview. You value the layers we don't see and their effects on our perceptions.

unless you have other influences in your birth chart that sharpen your self-discipline and practical nature. You are inclined to value those things that elevate your spirits and sense of oneness with the universe.

Life may become unnecessarily complicated for you as the result of too powerful expectations. You might consider how many times your mood plummets only because you were expecting something better than what transpired. Another possibility: a tendency to want to ignore the practical details of everyday life. You might benefit from having a trusted helper or advisor or assistant who handles the practical side of a project.

You prefer to trust people or the universe, at least until they've proved you wrong. You don't see the point of living in a constant state of suspicion, opting instead to have faith. Kind and compassionate, this aspect boosts your empathy and your power to spread goodness.

Jupiter square or opposition Neptune

With Jupiter square Neptune in the birth chart, you are especially charitable and sympathetic. On a fundamental level, you believe in humanity, or at least, each individual and their particular back story. It's crucial to be sure that people who receive your generosity are worth your efforts, although it can be difficult for you to practice this kind of skepticism in part because you don't want to believe the worst.

mistrust, but this aspect points to a fundamental desire to trust others because you don't want to live in a world where mistrust is the norm. The answer, then, is not to give up on your idealism, but to remind yourself of practical concerns from time to time and watch for unrealistic expectations. Your power to believe is fantastic.

You may need to perform frequent reality checks. One of the biggest potential challenges with this position is the tendency to waste opportunities by letting them pass by.

You have a basic belief in humanity or life itself, a fundamental optimism, and trust in your own "guardian angel" or equivalent. These can get in the way of practical concerns or cause other such problems. There can be some laziness in checking the details of a plan or situation. Because of your runaway imagination, it's best to enforce frequent reality checks due to a runaway imagination. You are extremely compassionate and empathic.

You're easily influenced by environmental factors, medicines, or drugs, and you tend to be very impressionable. You might have trouble locking things down, rather frequently procrastinating. It's not always easy to put your dreams into motion.

Perhaps at its worst, self-justification can be persistent with this aspect—people with a challenging Jupiter-Neptune aspect might make up morals as they go along, for example. It can be convenient to overlook specific rules to fit the situation.

It can be challenging to learn from our mistakes with the sometimes blind optimism and "everything will work out" mindset of this combination. However, if you're able to control this tendency, there is great compassion and vision to be found with Jupiter-Neptune. Indeed, there is much understanding and tolerance.

Oppositions – .

With Jupiter forming a sextile to Neptune in your birth chart, you are gracious and compassionate, and you appreciate subtleties. You have a spiritual side and intuitive, natural understanding. This aspect alone does not give discipline so that we would have to see signs of pragmatism elsewhere in the chart to see whether you only feel these things or you also take action on these feelings.

You're inclined to believe in karma, and you generally try to do what you feel is right. Your ideas of right and wrong are not rigid, however, as you believe that there is a backstory to every person and situation. This aspect is one indication of protection, sometimes at the last minute!

You are usually quite flexible and understanding, as well as noble in your ideas. Your empathy is well developed, you look out for the underdog, and you possess a distinct generosity of spirit. Open-mindedness is a gift and can assist you greatly in your life. Your faithful approach to the world tends to earn you the confidence of others.

You are trusting but also within reason so that you don't frequently lose your sense of proportion. You're quite talented at turning difficult situations around. You can be a mystic, and to what degree this is the case depends much on the rest of your chart.

This influence often suggests good fortune in businesses or circumstances related to the psychic arts, psychology, social work, education, cruises, travel, and the sea. Performing helpful services can be rewarding, but you should watch for selling yourself short. This aspect is one indication of reduced interest in the practical and material side of things such that if you don't have other more grounding influences in your chart, you might benefit from getting help with money management.

With Jupiter trine Neptune in the birth chart, you have an intuitive or spiritual approach to solving problems and a compassionate and tolerant worldview or perspective. You believe in your dreams, and perhaps humanity in general, more so than most.

You care for the underdog, you're hospitable, and you look out for the vulnerable. There can be a natural love of rousing music, art, religion, ceremony, and drama. This influence
