Jupiter in the First House

You present a jovial, kind, altruistic manner to the world around you, generally beginning any new undertaking with optimism and faith. Your belief in the power of positive thinking takes you places. Generally speaking, you are a very principled person with strong morals.

Jupiter in the Second House

Others might think you are lucky with money, gifts, or personal possessions. In fact, you are extremely resourceful. You take great pleasure in comfort and the world of the five senses. Sometimes this position points to over-indulgence in these things. A strong self-image or feelings of self-worth contribute to success.

Jupiter in the Third House

You are forward-looking—a real planner. You are endlessly curious and enjoy making happy connections with others. Sharing ideas with others is important to you—you take great pleasure in doing so. You are able to see the big picture and thus often are turned to for advice. With your sincere interest in others, you easily put people at ease in social situations.

Jupiter in the Fourth House

Your strong instincts tend to guide you, particularly on a professional level. You readily make warm connections with others, particularly valuing your family and close loved ones. Old age is expected to be pleasant and rewarding. Strong morals were reinforced in your childhood. You dream of, and will usually attain, a large or spacious home. You likely feel that “happiness is home.”

You are generous, playful, and warm, particularly with children and in your romantic life. Prosperous areas for you tend to be creative ones, entertainment, children, and recreation. You are talented at teaching, showing patience and love for the learning process and those learning.

Jupiter in the Sixth House

You have high standards in your business dealings with others, believing that one should always treat others with respect and faith. This may mean missing out on business opportunities in the short term, but others tend to build faith in your honest approach in the long run. You may help those less fortunate than you. Attraction to rich foods may be a problem in your life. You generally take great pleasure in the work you do and in being useful to others.

Jupiter in the Seventh House

Cultivating close, rewarding partnerships is important to you. You are talented at negotiations, believing strongly in fair play, and you are excellent at mediating conflicts. Legal matters may be fortunate for you. You value people and relationships, and might succeed best in partnership. Relating as equals is important to you. You might naturally use charm and grace to reach your goals.

Jupiter in the Eighth House

You are talented at strategy, research, and investigation. Getting to the root of any problem is important to you as you instinctively feel that this is where the answer lies. Similarly, you take great pleasure in unraveling mysteries and solving complex problems. You are naturally giving to a partner, both emotionally and materially. Taboos don't easily shock you.

Jupiter in the Ninth House

You are always hungry for knowledge and wisdom. With your naturally philosophical nature, you enjoy sharing your opinions and knowledge with others. You can be a natural teacher, and you love the learning process. Freedom of movement and expression are

Jupiter in the Tenth House

You readily take charge and use a winning, kindly approach while doing so. Others might see you as “lucky” when it comes to your career and business opportunities. It is natural for you to excel, and if others help you along the way, it is probably because of your winning attitude. In truth, you’re ethical, mature, and resourceful. You value achievement and manifestation, as well as those who take responsibility for their lives. Position or status can be quite important to you.

Jupiter in the Eleventh House

Your social life means a lot to you, and you take great pleasure in connecting with your friends as well as involvement in teams and groups or with your community. Friends tend to benefit you—they can be influential or otherwise very helpful. You are altruistic by nature, and you especially value people and personal freedom. You’re very open to new methods and progress, and you display great tolerance and humanitarianism.

Jupiter in the Twelfth House

This position of Jupiter by house is often considered the guardian angel position — something seems to save you just in the nick of time, probably due to your inborn faith in the universe. Solitude, working alone, and meditation can bring you great pleasure and a sense of rejuvenation. You are merciful and generous, often anonymously.
